The Paradise of Coquettes.

A POEM, in nine Parts.

A second edition of this elegant Poem just published and for sale by the Subscribers.

The character of this Poem is thus given by the Quarterly and Edinburgh reviewers:—

The Paradise of Coquettes;

The character in which the poet processes to speak, is that of the POET OF FOMAN. He is supposed to be addressing woman, and woman only, and addressing her, 'on adventures of which she is the heroine, and on charms and aces, which it is the whole history of her beauty to have exercised with failure success.'

His incontestable merits, and the assiduous care which he has bestowed upon the poem, deserve the warmest praise.

Quarterly Review, Oct. 1814.

We have here a little volume which may be fairly regarded as a prodigy in the age of quater ballads, romances, heroics, and sentimental simplicity. It is far the best and most brilliant imitation of Pope, that has appeared since the time of that great writer; with all his point, polish, and nicely balanced versification, as well as his sarcasm and witty allusion. He is always at home—always entertaining.

His satire is polished and yet pungent.

His versification, in particular, is almost invariably flowing & harmonious.

Edinburgh Review, Feb. 1815.

"A vein of polite irony runs through the 'Paradise of Coquettes' which was unfamiliar to the writers of the age of Anne and George the First, but has been discarded in making other modern improvements, by our contemporaries."

Alexandria Gazette.

PUBLISHED BY SAMUEL SNOWDEN,
ROYAL-STREET.]

WEDNESDAY, MAY 7, 1817.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ALEXANDRIA
GAZETTE.

The President and Directors of the Franklin Bank of Alexandria, had no desire to have presented to the public, through the medium of a newspaper, the subject of the controversy so unfortunately existing between the banks of this place. They hoped, their assailants would have been satisfied to have confined their attacks, to the active circulation of the hand-bills, which have been so industriously dispersed into every quarter of the United States. In that mode, the friends of the Franklin Bank have endeavored to pursue, and arrest the injurious efforts of its enemies. But in the Winchester Gazette, and other papers, we have lately seen the circular, containing the attacks libellously made on the Franklin Bank, presented in that conspicuous manner to the public. You will please therefore give a place to the following statement of all the correspondence and papers, in order that your readers may have it in their power to judge, from a view presented of both sides of the controversy.

The President and Directors of the Franklin Bank, are not aware of any thing of importance that has occurred since the emanation of the following statements on their part in hand-bills—unless it may be in the general progress of the controversy, which after a continuation of a run of near three weeks, produced by the conduct of the other banks, has had no other effect than to bring on the Franklin Bank; much of its paper—yet it was enabled to draw from the others (which had publicly announced its want of capital, and immediate destruction) at different times, mostly at the close of that period, near thirty thousand dollars in specie. It may not be improper either, in order to show to the public, the manner in which they mean to resist, and punish, the causeless and flagrant attack made on them, to state that they have brought suits against the principal conspirators against their interest.

TO THE PUBLIC.

In presenting to the community the Circular Letter of the Franklin Bank to other Banks, together with the correspondence explanatory of the causes of disagreement existing between that & other Banks of Alexandria, the President and Directors are not actuated by no other motive than to place before the public the statement of facts contained therein. This it has been thought indispensable necessary to do for the purpose of counteracting the injurious effects which the enemies of the Franklin Bank have endeavored to diffuse into society. There is one charge intimated against the conductors of the Franklin Bank, which it was not necessary to notice in the subjoined Letters, as it was addressed to Banks in the District, which could have recourse to the ready means of refuting the calumny. It is that arising from the affectation of ignorance, on the part of the enemies of the Franklin Bank, of whom the direction was composed. This direction is recorded in the office of the Secretary of the Treasury, according to the provisions of the charter—one of which very Banks making the complaint, has accepted a charter under the same circumstances. For the information of those who have not an opportunity of obtaining in that way the list of Directors, we beg leave to name it, as recorded, to wit: Wm. Thos. Swann, John M. Cobb, Amos A. Alexander, George Chapman, John Love, William B. Alexander, John Swayne, Thos. Cruse, Richard B. Alexander, (Prince William) Humphrey Peake, William H. Hampton, Gustavus R. A. Brown. Among the names presented to the public, and whose signatures will be found to the instrument accepting the charter, there are seen men of wealth and respectability. The Franklin Bank on both these grounds presumes a competition with any of its opponents.

If the Franklin Bank had ever, in any instance, refused or delayed to take up its issues with specie, when required, or had failed to afford accommodation to applicants, by an exchange of paper of more extensive circulation than their own, some reasonable grounds might have been offered for the efforts which have been so much labored for its destruction. But no pretence of this kind has existed, or will ever exist. Circumstances indeed make it too evident that the present cause of attack is of a different kind. In Alexandria, it is easily seen: had not the Board of Directors thought it right, and most consistent with the spirit of their charter to advertise the opening of their books to receive subscriptions, the resentment of some of the other Banks would not probably have broken out into open hostility. The fear of a more extensive participation in the patronage of the town, it is but too apparent, is the cause of the recent opposition to the Franklin Bank.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Franklin Bank of Alexandria, it was Resolved,

That the President communicate to the President and Directors of the different Banks in the town of Alexandria, that the Franklin Bank is now in operation, and would wish to be informed whether the said Bank is to be placed on an equal footing with the other Banks of the town, as it respects the receiving and giving credit to its paper.

SIR—I have the pleasure of communicating to you the above order, with a request that you will lay the same before your Board, and favor me with the result of their determination.

I have the honor to be, most respectfully, &c.

WM. THOS. SWANN.

March 31, 1817.

WM. HERBERT, Esq. President of the Bank of Alexandria.

Bank of Potomac, April 14, 1817.

In answer to a resolution from the Franklin Bank of Alexandria, the President and Directors of the Bank of Potomac are persuaded that the interest of the institution over which they preside, and the community, requires that they should not be instrumental in giving credit to the paper of a Bank in the town of Alexandria, at a time when they possess no satisfactory knowledge of the persons who compose its Direction, or of the situation of the Bank.

JAMES KEITH, JUN. President. At a Meeting of the President and Directors of the Farmers' Bank of Alexandria, in Bank, on the 9th of April, 1817:

Upon a communication from the President of the Franklin Bank of Alexandria being submitted, requesting to be informed whether it be the intention of this institution to receive the notes of that Bank.

Resolved, unanimously, That this Bank will not, for the present, receive the paper of the Franklin Bank of Alexandria.

This resolution is a copy from the Records.

RICHARD M. SCOTT, President.

Mechanics' Bank of Alexandria, April 24, 1817.

DEAR SIR—Our President pro tem. has suggested to me the propriety of sending you a copy of a letter I have addressed to the Cashier of the Bank of Alexandria; and which at once will be to you an answer to your communication. I have the honor to be, dear sir, your very obedient servant, WM. PATTON, JUN. Wm. Thomas Swann.

Mechanics' Bank of Alexandria, April 24, 1817.

DEAR SIR—I have the pleasure of sending you herewith a copy of an Order passed by this Board at a meeting on special business yesterday.

A communication from the Franklin Bank of Alexandria, through their President, being under consideration, it was

Resolved, That this Bank will not, for the present, receive the paper of the Franklin Bank of Alexandria. I am, very respectfully, dear sir, your obedient servant.

WM. PATTON, JUN. Cashier. J. L. McKenna, Esq.

Bank of Alexandria April 21, 1817.

To the President of the Franklin Bank of Alexandria.

SIR—Your communication of the 31st ultimo, addressed to me with the view to ascertain the course this Bank might intend to adopt in relation to the Franklin Bank, stated to be in operation, has been submitted to the Board of Directors. After maturely deliberating upon the nature of the claim of the Franklin Bank to a participation in the benefits arising from the perfect amity & intercourse which prevail among the Banks of this city, the result of a common interest and well grounded confidence, I am instructed to reply to you, that the Bank of Alexandria is constrained, by reasons as impetuous as they are obvious, to decline opening an account with, or receiving the notes of the institution you represent.

This Bank, ever influenced by a desire to promote the public welfare, and no enemy to a just competition, has, but in one instance, been compelled, by a sense of public duty, to deviate from its usual practice of admitting to an equality such institutions as have been established here subsequently to it; but (to apply no harsher epithet) the indiscreet zeal for multiplying banking companies, leading to issues of a paper currency without capital for its basis, with little prudence for its regulation, and with every temptation to its abuse, unhappily infatuating ourselves—a moral obligation was imposed on every good citizen to resist an alarming evil, pregnant with consequences as deleterious to the morals, as it has proved pernicious to the fortunes of individuals. But it is due to you, sir, explicitly to assign the motives why the Directors of this institution are averse from an intercourse with yours.

As far as their information extends, and, it is believed, that in the knowledge of the most numerous and respectable part of our citizens, possessing the means of information on such a subject, it is considered notorious, that the association denominated the Real Estate, or Franklin Bank, had no capital actually paid in in money, or a sum so inconsiderable as not to impart to it the color, even, of a capital.

The persons who compose this company, and particularly those who direct its operations, are unknown to this Board, and there is sufficient reason to believe that their names have been designedly withheld from the public; a circumstance surely not tending to inspire confidence in its discretion or security.

Although recently chartered, the circumstances under which the charter was obtained, would seem to disavow it of a claim to equal credit and privileges with other legalized institutions. The bill incorporating your Bank being first rejected in Congress, was revived at the close of the session, when the tumult of accumulated business rendered it necessary that the interest of all the unincorporated Banks within this District, and dependent on the National Legislature, (many of them, from their capital and respectability, universally acknowledged to be entitled to an act of incorporation) should be intimately involved and comprehended in one general bill. In a popular assembly, and at such a period, it is not rational to believe the respective claims of the petitioning Banks could be canvassed, or the requisite information obtained, relating to the manner of their establishment; and where claims so reasonable were urged, and a united interest so powerfully exerted, when the rejection of one bank from the bill, might easily produce an embarrassment fatal to all that remained, no additional confidence can be derived from the attainment of a charter, however imposing it may appear; but, on the contrary, as the notes of the company, under the sanction of its charter, may be issued free of individual responsibility, and with less circumspection, their currency becomes more hazardous. Even the safeguard against mismanagement which might be interposed by a regard for private reputation, the community is without while its direction remains concealed.

Permit me to add, that a motive not the least influential in determining this Bank to decline the reception of the notes of the Franklin Bank, is, that its very recent experience affords an example to deter it from recommending, by its countenance, to a remote circulation, the notes of any company or association, unless its better knowledge of circumstances, passing under its immediate observation induce a belief that its emissions of paper are sustained by an actual monied capital.

I am, sir, with due consideration, Your ob'd't serv't,

WM. HERBERT, Pres't of the Bank of Alexandria.

Franklin Bank of Alexandria, April 22, 1817.

To the President of the Bank of Alexandria.

SIR—In reply to your letter of the 21st inst. yesterday received, I am instructed to observe, that had it been deemed proper by your Board only to have announced their determination in the common terms of respect due to the feelings of others, no remark on it, would now have been thought necessary. But when in answer to a plain and not unusual enquiry from one Bank to another, you have thought proper to enter into a course of remarks as unfounded in fact and propriety, as evincive of the spirit of unprovoked hostility in which they were conceived and labored, to decline a reply to them might be construed into an acquiescence in their correctness.

We could not indeed sir, have expected more from the puffed vanity of a young man, than the display of so supercilious a temper of dictation as that contained in your remarks on what you have termed the zeal for multiplying Banks, & we must object to the right you have thus assumed of deciding on this question; the more especially as it has been passed on by a tribunal, whose authority, although you now so perfectly condemn, it may happen you will be taught yet to respect. We should also object to your decision on the score of interest.

In the expression of that animosity which you feel against the government of your country for this act which you disapprove, you, sir, as the organ of others, have not adhered to the character of correctness, which has ever marked you as a man. To you personally we are far from attributing this deviation, or any impurity of intention; but when you are instructed to state, as you say you are, that the act of incorporation granted to this Bank was the effect of a tumult, and the irrational act of a popular assembly, contrary to their previous determination, which had rejected the application of the Franklin Bank, we are obliged to pronounce, such assertions futile and slanderous in the most positive sense. If it was true, that the bill to charter the Franklin Bank was rejected at any time, it would also have been true that all the petitions of the other Banks were rejected, and it would now be true, that the petition of the Bank of Alexandria to prolong its charter, was rejected, and rejected at a time when you are pleased to suppose there was in Congress some degree of rational self-possession.

In relation to the remarks it has been thought proper to make of the Direction and Capital of the Bank, if, as you are instructed to profess, any disposition had been really felt to know who were the Directors, your inquiry might have been satisfied, if made in no unfriendly spirit, by an application to any of the superintending officers of the Franklin Bank—or if the object had been of the importance you would seem to attach to it, by inquiring at the office of the Secretary of the Treasury.

As it respects the capital of the Franklin Bank, you are perfectly at liberty to indulge in the unfavorable suggestions you appear to take a pleasure in adopting. On this subject, we would further observe, that you cannot think more insignificantly of our capital than we are warranted in believing of the real state of yours.—It is sufficient on our part to say, that we are, and probably always shall be, prepared to compare with the Bank of Alexandria in the fair and independent means of meeting our engagements.

I am desired only to add, that we cannot place to the account you direct, the professions you are instructed to make of attachment to the public interests; and that if, in consequence of the hostile spirit you are desired in the terms you have chosen to manifest towards us, inconvenience or injury should follow to a portion of the commercial interest, this Bank cannot be charged as the aggressor.

We beg it may not be deemed a condescension in us to express the regret which is sincerely felt, that the language of your communication has placed the institutions we respectively represent in an unfriendly attitude.

We have never asked the aid or patronage of any Bank: we shall probably never find it necessary to do so. It was our desire to reciprocate in acts of amity, so necessary to the interests of the community as well as of Banks. But if it is deemed necessary that the powers which the longer standing of your Institution alone has given it over ours, should be employed to crush us, (as you have fully announced) we must appeal to the justice of the public to decide, whether we shall not be permitted to act even offensively, if necessary to our existence.

I am desired to tender to you, sir, personally, the testimony of our respect, and to assure you, none of the preceding remarks are intended to have any other application than to the conduct of those by whom you have been instructed to give to the letter we have received, the sanction of your signature as an officer....

And that I am, sir, with perfect respect, yours, &c.

WM. THOS. SWANN, President of the Franklin Bank.

The following Circular was transmitted to the several Banks in Washington and Georgetown:

Franklin Bank, April 22, 1817.

To the President of SIR—It is due to the respect the President and Directors of the Franklin Bank of Alexandria feel for the good opinion of your Board, to explain the causes which have led to the disagreement, which must no longer be concealed, that exists between this Bank and some of the other Banks of this town.

The hostility which has never ceased to be urged, in the most uncharitable and unfair manner, by some of the friends of the Banks of Alexandria towards the Franklin Bank, has been on the part of the latter, always unmerited and unprovoked. Without a ground for suspicion of its ability to discharge its contracts, and without a charge, which dared to raise above the private whisper of a slanderous tongue, of any unfairness in the origin or conduct of this Bank, it has continually been assailed by the malignity of a monopolizing spirit.

The combination, thus organized, and unfortunately very powerful in this place, had produced the determination in the patrons of this Institution, while unchartered, to relinquish the design of continuing its banking operations, unless a charter was obtained from Congress at its last session. This determination was formed on the advice of other gentlemen of respectability, who had offered to take an interest in the Bank, if chartered, and who declared they would not otherwise afford it their countenance.

The favorable result of their application to Congress has had the effect, as promised, of uniting with the former associates a strong and respectable monied interest. No doubt remained, as no reason could possibly be assigned with fairness, but that the Banks of this town would cease their hostility, and afford to this Bank the countenance it merited. The Directors of some of the other Banks expressed their desire that the Franklin Bank should hasten its preparation for operations under its charter. At length the time arrived, when the situation of the Franklin Bank made it proper to announce to the others its state of readiness to do business, and willingness to adopt the usual rules of intercourse with them, when, to the utter astonishment of the Board, they received from the Bank of Potomac a reply, fraught with insult, purporting to be a determination to refuse to give credit, in any manner, to the issues of the Franklin Bank.

In this moment of feeling, it was resolved to demand the payment of a portion of the notes of that Bank held by us, limiting our demand, however, to ten thousand dollars. The Board were influenced to this determination by the consideration that as that Bank had chosen at once to cut off the hope of friendly intercourse, it was due to the interest of this, not to keep too large a portion of their paper dead on our hands, which we must have done, or have subjected ourselves to the humiliation of circulating and giving credit to the notes of a Bank, where a reciprocation was refused.

Yet under these circumstances, we presume not generally understood, we have since had the mortification to find, that the other Banks of this town have declined keeping accounts with us "for the present." We are satisfied that the friendly disposition felt by some of them is, as indicated by their language, only suspended, and that wholly under the influence of the two older Banks, with whom they have engaged, as is understood, to act concertedly, at a period when the resumption of specie payments made it necessary such a league should be formed.

We are not conscious of any cause on our part for the disagreement unfortunately existing between us and those other Banks. And we have thus submitted to your consideration, as the proper umpire on such occasions between such contending parties in your vicinity. It is with the utmost sincerity we express our regret at these occurrences; but we still apprehend, the modes which have been adopted, of the most unfair and covert description to injure us, must be made to recoil on the authors; and should the further progress of this lamented controversy make it necessary, we shall take the liberty of transmitting for your judgment the papers and correspondence which exist on the subject. We ask, sir, of you to act only in the way we are confident, your sense of justice will prompt, and to leave to the unfortunate institutions engaged in this controversy, their natural means to bring it to a termination.

With perfect respect,

we are your ob't,

WM. THOS. SWANN, President of the Franklin Bank.

Franklin Bank, April 20, 1817.

It is due to the respect the silent and Directors of the Franklin Bank, of Alexandria, for the opinion of your Board, to explain the causes which have led to the agreement, which must no longer be concealed, that exists between this bank and some of the other banks of town.

The hostility which has never ceased to be urged, in the most unbecoming manner, by some of the Banks of Alexandria, against the Franklin Bank, has been the part of the latter, always unprovoked and unprovoked. Without a word of suspicion of its ability to charge its contracts, and without a word, which dared to raise above private whisper of a slanderous charge, of any unfairness in the original conduct of this Bank, it has continually been assailed by the malignity monopolizing spirit.

The combination, thus organized, unfortunately very powerful in place, had produced the determination in the patrons of this institution, while uncharacterized, to relinquish design of continuing its banking operations, unless a charter was obtained from Congress at its last session. This determination was formed on the advice of other gentlemen of respectability, who had offered to an interest in the Bank, if engaged, and who declared they would otherwise afford it their countenance.

The favorable result of their application to Congress has had the effect, promised, of uniting with the other associates a strong and respectable moneyed interest. No doubt aimed, as no reason could possibly be assigned with fairness, but that Banks of this town would cease hostility, and afford to this bank the countenance it merited. The directors of some of the other Banks expressed their desire that the Franklin Bank should hasten its preparation operations under its charter. At the time arrived, when the situation of the Franklin Bank made it proper to announce to the others its readiness to do business, and willingness to adopt the usual rules of course with them, when, to the astonishment of the Board, they received from the Bank of Potomac a letter, freight with insult, purporting a determination to refuse to give credit in any manner, to the issues of the Franklin Bank.

In this moment of feeling, it was resolved to demand the payment of a portion of the notes of that Bank held by us, limiting our demand, however, to ten thousand dollars. The Board influenced to this determination the consideration that as that Bank had chosen at once to cut off the hope of friendly intercourse, it was due to interest of this, not to keep too long a portion of their paper dead on hand, which we must have done, have subjected ourselves to the imputation of circulating and giving credit to the notes of a Bank, where a prohibition was refused.

Under these circumstances, we cannot but generally understand, we since had the mortification to find, that the other Banks of this town declined keeping accounts with us for the present. We are not conscious of any cause on our part for the disagreement mutually existing between us and the other banks. And we have thus submitted to your consideration, the proper course on such occasions, between such confederate parties in your community. It is with the utmost sincerity we express our regret at these occurrences; but we still apprehend, modes which have been adopted, the most unfair and covert description to injure us, must be made to rest on the authors; and should further progress of this lamentable controversy make it necessary, we will take the liberty of transmitting for your judgment, the papers and correspondence which exist on the subject. ## ALEXANDRIA; WEDNESDAY, MAY 7, 1817.

The independence of South America may now be reasonably considered as inevitable. The conduct of the revolutionary leaders in Buenos Ayres has been marked not only with ability and moderation, but with a temperance and moderation which give them a claim to the good wishes and approbation of every friend of freedom. Their cause is the cause of the whole species; and nothing but the abuses so constantly attendant upon popular insurrections could have hitherto rendered any man of humanity indifferent to their success. How it has fared, or how it may fare with other parts of that vast continent we do not pretend to say, nor will we even venture to conjecture; but this we feel no hesitation in affirming, that the progress of revolution in that part to which we now specially allude, was as mild and as bloodless (provided the accounts that have reached us be true) as any of equal extent and importance of which we have, at this moment, a recollection. The affair of Pernambuco was singularly happy; and the treatment experienced by the officers of the king's army, a lustre upon the revolutionists, and will do much to obtain for the further progress of the revolution in all parts of that continent, friends, admirers and adherents. Let them but persevere in that line of conduct, and their cause will not have an enemy in the whole world, unless it be among the slaves and bigots who surround the bearded Ferdinand, or princes, of his worthless character.

The plan of passing from the river into Cuba over the Cordillera, (the highest mountains, it is said, in the world) was a bold and masterly conception, and we are rejoiced to hear that it was attended with the success which such a proceeding merited. Against the authors and executors of such a project, backed by a vast population long animated by, and now enthusiastic in the cause of liberty, Ferdinand and his feeble minions will be powerless—and the cause of freedom is decisively triumphant in that finest part of the globe. Thousands who were afraid to move, will now flock to its standard, and a few months will in all probability chase despotism finally, and we hope forever, from the new world.

But while, as men, we contemplate this gratifying prospect with joy, we are not without apprehensions of its affecting the United States very sensibly.—That it will draw off a large portion of our own population and considerably divert away from us the tide of emigration from the old world cannot be doubted. The salubrity of the climate and the richness of the soil, the unbounded variety of its natural productions, and in general, the advantages it possesses over every other country in the known world in all the circumstances which can render life comfortable, cannot fail, unless the madness of those who get the power into their hands should produce a state of political contention to counterbalance the beneficence of nature, to draw to it all who feel loose in their native countries and are desirous to fix their fortunes in the most desirable situation. To people half choked with the fogs of England, and trembling with apprehensions on account of their families, of the interminable, the frequent epidemics, the consumptions and the acute fevers of the United States, a climate proverbially celebrated for its salubrity—where even flesh exposed to the intense rays of the sun never putrefies, will have attractions too powerful to be resisted. The operations of a free and wise constitution and of good laws, like those of the United States however, must have had a due effect upon the morals and manners of the people, and been known to essentially alter the habits of the South Americans before any but that class of adventurers who are willing to run any risk "to mend life or get rid of it," will venture to transport himself to that country, excellent as it is.

From the London Courier of 4th March. One of those occurrences that soften the asperity of party politics, and make us more in love, if that were possible, with the manliness, the noble, generous feelings of the British character, occurred last night in the House of commons, upon the motion for a new writ for St. Maw's in the room of Francis Horner, Esq. deceased. The motion was made by Lord Morpeth, who, with that good taste which is always allied to real feeling, availed himself of the opportunity for paying a tribute to the memory of the deceased. That a man should speak with warmth of a departed friend, we must expect, but in the present instance the warmth of panegyric did not overstep the strictest justice and the nicest discrimination. We know not to whom the melancholy but soothing task of drawing the character of Mr. Horner could have been more judiciously confided. In the just tribute paid by Lord Morpeth, all the distinguished members of both sides of the house joined.—Mr. Canning dwelt upon his various knowledge and attainments, his strength of feeling, the modesty that accompanied his great talents, and shed additional lustre upon them. Mr. W. Elliott spoke of his enlightened mind, his sober and sedate judgment, the inflexible rectitude of his private as well as of his public character. Sir S. Romilly, Mr. C. Grant, Mr. Manners Sutton, Mr. Wynn, Lord Lascelles, joined in the merited eulogy—"all scattering flowers upon his honored grave." If, as has been the conjecture of some writers, the dead are yet permitted to have a knowledge of what occurs in this world after they have shuffled off this "mortal coil," how soothing must it be to be so spoken of and so remembered!—But what a lesson of emulation and encouragement does it afford to the living, and what an additional stimulus does it give us to cling to that admirable system and frame of government, under which a man not possessed of hereditary rank or fortune, is able, by his own talents and integrity, to vindicate to himself a station in society, of which those born to the highest honors and greatest wealth may well be proud!

New-York, May 2. THE ELECTION.

We have not received the returns of the different polls, for they are not yet ascertained. As to governor and senators, only one ticket was offered, but we learn that the Marling ticket for assembly, has prevailed over that of the Clintonian, by some where about one thousand votes, notwithstanding the cheering from the Columbian, and the sham offer of the $500 bet. The corporation will remain another year in the same hands it already is; nor was any systematic effort made to change it, although opposition tickets were offered, and merely offered, in several of the outwards. We can speak more intelligibly on this subject a day or two hence.

New-York, May 3. On Monday last, at Boston, Capt. Kelso, late master of the schooner Ocean, of Maine, was brought before the Hon. Judge Davis, charged with having been accessory to the destruction of that vessel at sea on her passage from Havre de Grace to Boston, in February last, and of conspiring with others in Paris, to defraud the underwriters of this town, Boston, &c. of a sum amounting nearly to 60,000 dollars by shipping aboard one hundred boxes of stones and rubbish on board the schooner, and assuring them as bales of dry goods, &c. which were afterwards to be concealed by the destruction of the vessel. Two seamen belonging to the Ocean were examined, who testified to the occurrences on the passage;—at the close of which, Mr. Blake, Attorney of the United States, moved, that the examination be postponed ten days, to give him time to collect further evidence from New-York and the District of Maine: Captain K. was then committed for further examination.

SPECIE.—On Saturday last, the Venus, from London, arrived here, and brought in, on private account, upwards of 300,000 dollars in SPECIE.—The Solon, from Liverpool, also brought a considerable sum—and the Ship Emily, arrived at Baltimore; and the Electra at Philadelphia, both from London, also brought in very large sums, in specie, all on private accounts.

The Boston Daily Advertiser remarks,—"Lord Byron, after spending some time at Venice, relinquished his design of going to the east, and at the last accounts was in Switzerland, on his return to England." It appears that Zerah Colburn has been some time in Westminster, under the patronage of the Earl of Bristol.

The Boston Palladium, in copying from the London papers per the Gallen, gives in a summary way, the following:—Lord Castlereagh has stated it to be the intention of the British Government to observe strict neutrality between Spain and her revolted colonies. Mr. Pousonby gave notice of an intended motion on this subject. Complaint was made by Mr. Brougham, of the Spanish slave trade.

The price of corn is said to continue to fall in the Germany Markets.

It is reported American flour has risen to 90s. per barrel in London, and that fears are entertained of the present season, from the wetness of the winter rotting the seed planted in the fall.

A quantity of American flour imported into Cork from Baltimore, has sold freely for 93s 6d. to 95s per barrel.

An article under the head of St. Erbesborne, England, March 31, states—"A farmer of experience says, the wheat plant never looked more promising at this season than at present between Bristol and Devonshire."

A swarm of Bees were taken on the 17th; such has been the warmth of the season.

Captain TRETT, arrived here yesterday from Port au-Prince, contradicts the report of the death of PETRON. He had been sick for some time, which probably gave rise to the story of his death. When Capt. T. sailed, he had entirely recovered.

The war between Christophe and Pétion was conducted with very little spirit; some trifling skirmishes occasionally took place, but both parties appeared to be desirous of peace.

The British Frigate which was despatched some time since from Port au Prince, for the purpose of demanding some Negroes who had absconded from the former place; in a pilot boat, sailed about a week before Captain T. The object of her visit had not been accomplished, the refugees having escaped and taken shelter in the mountains.

Markets for American produce were dull at Port-au-prince, and the produce of the Island high. Rice 12 dollars; Flour 26; Tobacco 25 a 26; (Indigene currency) which is very much depreciated. Coffee 20 a 21 cents; sugar 12 a 13 dollars.

COMMUNICATED FOR THE GAZ.
Havanna, April 16, 1817

Business is pretty brisk here; American vessels are taken up on freight or charter, in preference to any other flag, because the patriotic privateers in this neighbourhood, do not molest them except by patting the crews of captured vessels on board. There are half a dozen Spanish men of war quietly riding at their anchors in the harbor, and it was but yesterday, that a droger with 250 boxes of white sugar, was taken by a patriotic privateer, and carried off within sight of Moro Castle.

Charleston April 22. We understand that the Spaniards are very much exasperated against the Americans, in consequence of the numerous piratical cruizers, which are fitted out in the different ports of the United States, and cruising against their commerce. The American flag was, in consequence, hoisted on board the Guard ship in the port of Havanna, a few days since.

DIED.—In the District of Maine, after a short illness of four days, Maj. General CYRUS KING, formerly a member of the House of Representatives—aged 44 years.

Seminary.

T. PROWITT,
MOST respectfully acquaints his friends and the public in Alexandria, that he intends opening a SEMINARY for young Ladies and Gentlemen on Wednesday, May 7, in the school-house, on the green, between Mr. John Vowell's and Col. Simons's, formerly occupied by Mr. John Paradise.

The branches which he professes to teach are such as are comprised in an English education, viz. Reading, Orthography, Writing, Arithmetic, English Grammar, Eloquence, and the Elements of Geography.

Parents or guardians who feel disposed to place their children under his care, will, he humbly hopes, be fully satisfied with their improvement, being determined on paying the most sedulous attention in order to facilitate the progress of his pupils in learning, and to instil virtuous and religious principles into their minds.

The most satisfactory references for character and abilities can be produced. The desks and benches will be so arranged as to prevent the different sexes interfering with each other, and they will enter at different doors. The ladies will be dismissed at least ten minutes before the boys.

No boys above 12 years of age can be admitted.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber's farm near Alexandria, on the Saturday night preceding the Easter Holidays, a negro man, named Dick, who commonly calls himself RICHARD PARKER.—Dick formerly belonged to the estate of William Triplett, deceased; is very black, stoops a little in the shoulders, but is likely; has formerly worn earrings, and has rather a wild look out of his eyes when spoken to, about 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high, and is a smart, intelligent fellow. He went off well supplied with clothes of which he has a variety—a black velvet waistcoat, and a dark brown great coat with a large cape, are the only articles recollected—a good stock of money; and it is more than probable has been furnished with papers to represent him as a freeman, as his father & other relations in Alexandria are free people.
